SIGNS OF BUSINESS UPTURN

In Washington it is currently the vogue to debate the genuineness of the present business recovery. Actually, some government officials are hopeful that the recovery will not be too rapid, touching off an uncontrolled spiral of sharp inflation.

On the other hand business men are a little hesitant to accept the upturn as a permanent, broad business movement. Investors, who are active in the stock market, have accepted the business recovery, and the stock market has reflected the new economic turn for several months.

The latest indications are that business men who have been decreasing their inventories are slowing down this process and will probably halt it in the near future. And while there is still some major unemployment, and some areas of economic depression, the general picture is constantly improving.

New orders for durable goods are rising considerably, and the average work week in the manufacturing industry has increased. Residential building and the dollar value of new construction in August was very high.

These are some of the traditionally early signs of a recovery, but there are other signs — some of which are termed by economic experts as late signals of recovery. These include the trend of employment and unemployment, industrial production, personal income, retail sales, etc.

The key to the present recovery probably lies in some of the props which the government has built into the economy since the depression of the 1930's. The Federal government increased spending tremendously this year, and many millions of workers actually obtained federal pay increases.

These increases, added to the millions of social security payments, the steady and increased military salaries of millions, and unemployment insurance and other stabilizing influences, obviously prevented another depression from developing. Even if there is a strike in the automobile industry, we believe the economy is on the upswing for a period of some years. Too many signs of recovery are now apparent to justify any other conclusion.

HOLLAND WINS

The victory of Senator Spessard L. Holland, in turning back the bid of former Senator Claude Pepper, in Florida, is a significant one. Pepper was an ardent New Dealer and appealed to the extreme liberal wing of his party.

Senator Holland, on the other hand, is one of the handful of senators in Washington who stubbornly vote their convictions and do not knuckle under either to party dictates or those of the various machines and lobbies. Often Holland has voted his convictions, which coincided with the votes of the majority of Republicans in the Senate.

On the other hand, he has been steadfast with Southern Democrats on the issues which traditionally are "sacred" in the South, and there is no question but that he is the more conservative of the two men. Therefore, Holland's victory in Florida was a win for the conservative wing of the Democratic party.

FINITE OR INFINITE

The scientists are now telling us that Albert Einstein's theory on the universe might be right, after all. Respecting the opinions of the late Mr. Einstein considerably, we think this theory warrants mention.

As the reader knows, the general thesis long accepted has been that space and the universe is infinite. Many of the interpretations of the writers of the Bible lay this claim to the highest sources, But Einstein worked out the theory that here is a shape and a sort of circular spacetime concept to what exists.

The natural question for the average person to ask, when considering such vast questions is, that if there is a limit to the universe, or outer space, then what is on the outside? That has always been one of the things about the whole concept of space that the human mind could not comprehend. The only way to resolve this in one's mind is to conclude that there are many things we on earth cannot possibly understand in our minds—or were not meant to understand. It is of note that Mr. Einsein clung to the personal conviction that there must be a God and an order to the whole cosmic scheme.

But Einstein pointed out that our mechanical principles about matter, time, etc., were all human yardsticks which did not exist. All there is, he believed, was matter and energy. And there are, in a sense, events, but not time. And if the generally followed theory that the entire universe once originated from a flaming ball of matter or energy—exploding to be scattered to the fartherest known void—is accepted, then this becomes easier to believe.

Yet the human mind still cannot comprehend outer space, or no space outside the events of matter and energy we know—because we have not developed our thought processes to think in this direction.

In short, with the present limitations on the way we think, and with the present mechanical concepts we have, we are unable to understand the mysteries of the universe—not because they are not understandable but because our thought concepts and processes are not in line with reality and the ultimate truth.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Amos 7:7-9; Isaiah 1:10-20; Micah 2:1-4, 6-8; Matthew 7:15-27; 22:21-46.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 37:1-11.

Final Verdict

Lesson for September 28, 1958

ONE THING the Bible teaches quite plainly: God is the final court of appeal, his is the final verdict. This is true in two ways. First, only God's judgment is final, because all other judgments are partial, they are based on a comparatively ignorant point of view. We never see the inside of people, or not very clearly at best. We cannot even examine our own minds and hearts with any accuracy. We are ignorant, moreover, of many of the circumstances surrounding or leading up to the acts of other people. Only God knows man inside and out, only God knows the "intents of the heart", only God knows all the circumstances leading up to men's decisions.

Dr. Foreman

In another sense God's verdict is final, because it will be the last one. After all a man's friends and enemies have had their say, after history has enshrined him, blasted him or forgotten him, God will have the last word. Not man's opinion of himself, not other men's opinion of him, is finally decisive. Every man's destiny depends, in the long run, on what God thinks of him.

Justice comes first

The great prophets, and our Lord who was "more than a prophet," bring this home to everybody with a working conscience. Amos had his vision of God testing the walls men have built, with his own plumb line, ready to tear down every wall not meeting the test. Isaiah tells his church-going city that God has no use for any religious thing they do, because they have been content with an injustice. The first thing to do is to "seek justice." Micah pronounces the doom of God on those who make themselves rich by making others poor. Jesus in his great prevision of the Last Judgment, divides men right and left on the basis of how they have treated their fellow-men, especially their fellow-men in distress. And then there is the Sermon on the Mount. People argue over this and try to by-pass it, in many ways. They debate over whether it is a practical ideal or not. The fact is, Jesus presents it as God's way of life for man. The Golden Rule, for example, Jesus' principle of justice in one short sentence (Matt. 7:12), is not just a nice idea if you can do it: it is a rock in life's foundation. Build on my sayings, Jesus says, in effect, and your house will stand the storm. Pay no attention, or memorize them if you like—just listen and don't do, and the great storms will bring your house of life to careless ruin.

Justice is not optional

Every one agrees that it takes all kinds of Christians to make the Kingdom of God. A Christian can serve God and men in various ways. It is by no means necessary for all Christians to be ministers, or to enter politics, or to be professional men. A good Christian dish-washer—if that is the most he can do with the mind he has—is just as faithful a Christian as a good Christian governor of a state.

But there is one thing that is not optional, not an extra that a Christian can take on as a hobby if he likes, but an absolute essential: justice. We have seen in these past weeks that the Bible idea of justice is not confined to the courtroom (though it is there, of course). Treating people as you would wish to be treated, seeking the good of others as if it were your own: this is justice, in the home and everywhere. This is the ABC of living as a Christian.

Justice Comes Last

So it should not be surprising thouh Jesus hinted more than once that a good many people will be surprised—it should not be surprising that at the last, when God sums up the case and his his final verdict, he will judge (I Peter 1: 17) "each one impartially according to his deeds." And since it is very hard to perform any act whatever without affecting other people, this means that after all other judgments are in, God's last judgment of each of us will be based on that question: How did you treat people?

Washington Notes

Farm Income Up

Farmers received $16,600,000,000 from cash marketings in the first seven months of this year.

The Agriculture Department said the total represented an 11 per cent increase over the same period in 1957.

Build-up of Beef Cattle

A big build-up of beef cattle continues on ranges, ranches and farms.

The Agriculture Department reported that slaughter of calves has been running around 30 per cent below levels of a year ago. An abundance of feed — particularly grass —was said to be a major factor in holding calves and vealers off the market.

NASA Plans Formed

The newly established National Aeronautics and Space Administration has detailed plans to probe the skies with a whole series of earth satellites.

These are for the year ahead. For the more distant future NASA is already at work on projects to explore the moon and then move on to the planets.

A. E. C. Ends Tests

The Atomic Energy Commission has announced that it has successfully concluded its summer series of nuclear tests in the Pacific. It said that they had "contributed to further development of improved weapons."

Improved Rice Milling

The Agriculture Department reports that its engineers have developed improved procedures for milling rice that should add at least $2,000,000 a year to the value of the crop.

The new process was said to reduce the number of rice kernels which break during the milling process.

New Tax Rise?

The Eisenhower Administration is considering the possibility of a $1,000,000,000 increase in gasoline taxes and postal rates. The aim: to help offset spending that will push the national debt to a record peak this year.

Budget Director Maurice H. Stans said officials will decide within 60 days whether to ask Congress for another round of boosts in Federal levies against users of the mails and roads.

Employment Up

Unemployment declined last month to its lowest point since January, and employment rose for the sixth consecutive month to a high for the year, according to the joint estimates by the Comemrce and Labor Departments.

Unemployment at mid-August was put at 4,509,000. This was 800,000 lower than in July, but more than 2,000,000 greater than in August 1957.

Army To Draft 11,000

The Army will ask for 11,000 draftees during November. This is the same monthly quota as for September and October. As usual, the Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force made no requests to Selective Service.

MOON SHOT TRY

Cape Canaveral, Fla.- The second United States attempt to shoot for the moon probably will not come until October.

The Defense Department says that no date has been set for the next try to launch a satellite around the moon, and that the chances of its coming in September are unlikely.

Thus, theoretically at least, Russia will get two chances to reach the moon first before the United States tries again.
